

PRIORITY MARKET — NO TRADEMARK CONFLICT · LATIN AMERICA PHASE

COLOMBIA · MARKET ENTRY PLAN

The first lane: Colombia

How Tres Ese enters Latin America's only top-10 tequila market on a pilot budget — importer shortlist, landed-cost model in pesos, and a 12-month plan built around the Aug-Dec gifting season and Expovinos 2027.

TRES ESE

TEQUILA ORGÁNICO · LOS ALTOS DE JALISCO · SINCE 1905

The only Latin American market in the global top 10

The CRT ranks Colombia sixth among the world's tequila importers — and the only one in Latin America. Same language, same culture, zero duty.

IMPORT RANK

#6 worldwide

Sixth-largest tequila import market in the world on 2025 full-year CRT data (9th in Jan 2025). The only Latin American country in the top 10; Brazil's presence is "muy pequeña".

VOLUME · VALUE

5.5M L US$44.5M

Tequila imported in 2022 — 6% of alcohol imports by volume but 17.5% by value: it is a premium category here.

GROWTH

+18–20% per year

Tequila +69% over five years while aguardiente lost 20% (RCN / CRT; Universidad EAN).

Who imports Colombia's tequila — share of volume, 2022 (latest importer-level data)

WHERE THE GROWTH IS

Colombia is trading up — from aguardiente to agave

Consumers are moving to premium, certified-origin spirits. The year-end gifting season is where premium tequila launches.

Five-year volume change in Colombia

PREMIUM SIGNALS

2024–25 launches

Patrón Cristalino, Don Ramón's ultra-premium line (via Carulla/Éxito in Antioquia) and Casa Don Ramón mezcal all entered targeting the gift season.

100% AGAVE

73% of Mexico's exports

The category is already premium at source: 73% of all tequila exported in Jan 2025 was 100% agave.

Seasonality: August, September and November are the peak import months. Bogotá and Medellín lead; Cartagena follows tourism.

Certified organic, additive-free — under Don Julio's price

Colombia buys premium tequila on name and gift value. We bring a provable story and land below the two brands that own the sipping tier.

POSITIONING IN COLOMBIA

The certified-organic, additive-free highland tequila for people who sip Don Julio — at ~25% less on the shelf, with a family story Colombians recognise.

Three gates, none of them closed

No duty, a sanitary registration the importer handles, and one tax whose worst case just got smaller.

1 · Duty: 0%

- Mexico–Colombia FTA (G2, since 1995): 97% of tariff lines at 0%
- Certificate of origin per shipment
- Pacific Alliance is the fallback
- HS 2208.90 — customs agent to confirm the line in DIAN's arancel

2 · INVIMA registration

- Held by the Colombian importer, with our authorisation
- One registration can cover Blanco, Reposado and Extra Añejo
- 15 working days once filed — plan 2–3 months end-to-end
- Since 14 Jan 2026 no BPM/GMP certificate required (Decreto 1083/2025); free-sale certificate still needed
- Label: Spanish sticker with INVIMA number + importer — no new bottle

3 · Impuesto al consumo

- Specific: COP 360 per degree per 750 ml → COP 13,574 on our Blanco
- Ad valorem: 25% of DANE-certified retail price
- IVA on spirits: 5%
- Decreto 1474/2025 (COP 750 / 30% / 19%) was struck down by the Constitutional Court — Sentencia C-079/2026, April 2026
- Live risk: Ley de Financiamiento (filed 23 Jul 2026) — IVA 5% → 19%, consumo unchanged. That is our Scenario B

From San Julián to a Bogotá shelf

Blanco Orgánico, per 700 ml bottle, in thousands of Colombian pesos (TRM 3,100). Scenario A — the tax rates in force today.

Where COP 175K lands

Bogotá shelf prices, La Licorera, September 2026, in thousands of pesos. Both Tres Ese scenarios sit in the premium 100% agave tier.

Blanco / plata, 700–750 ml, incl. tax — COP thousands

BELOW US

Mixto and volume 100% agave (Sierra, Cuervo Tradicional) at COP 90–135K — the shot-and-mix market.

WITH US

Altos and Don Julio at COP 197–238K — the sipping tier where Colombia is growing. Scenario A puts us just under both; even at 19% IVA we only match Altos.

ABOVE US

Campo Azul, Dobel, Casa Dragones (COP 800K), Clase Azul (COP 956K) — gift and status bottles.

Ten players, three realistic doors

The multinationals own their agave brands. One premium importer has no tequila at all, and the small ones already list unknown Mexican brands — that's where we go first.

Registered by December, selling by Q1

INVIMA is the critical path. Everything before it is paperwork we can start this week; the peak season we aim for is Aug-Dec 2027.

Filled dot = can start now at no cost. Open dot = needs the approvals on slide 13.

A pallet to prove it, peak season to build it

Proposed Colombia volume, cases of 6 × 700 ml. Conservative — one importer, Bogotá on-trade + e-commerce first, retail chains only at Expovinos.

Cases per quarter

YEAR-ONE CASES

660 cases

5.5 pallets · 3,960 bottles · ~60/40 Blanco/Reposado

FOB REVENUE

$59.6K at list

At $87 / $95.40 per case. About 3% of the global Year-2 plan — larger than Germany because the season and the culture are on our side.

WHAT IT UNLOCKS

An INVIMA-registered brand, a Latin American reference for Peru and Chile (same Pacific Alliance 0% duty), and a Spanish-language sell-in story for the whole region.

What each dollar buys us

Colombia is a tasting culture — small, frequent activations beat media. The importer carries INVIMA and tax; we carry samples and presence.

$0 — samples only

- 3 sample packs shipped from Jalisco
- Email + video calls; origin and free-sale paperwork
- Realistic partners: La Licorera, KYVA, Lumana
- Expect: online listing, slow on-trade build

$6–8K — recommended

- Everything above, plus
- One trip: Bogotá + Medellín (4 days)
- Label stickers + INVIMA document translation
- Bartender kit: 50 samples, 10 tastings, spec sheets in Spanish
- Realistic partners: Vinpar + La Licorera, Nóvili

$15–20K — accelerate

- Everything above, plus
- Part-time brand ambassador, Bogotá, 6 months
- Expovinos 2027 in-store activation with the importer
- Medellín HORECA programme (Dislicores pitch)
- Expect: two importers competing, chain retail in year 1

Known risks, known answers

IVA goes to 19%

The Ley de Financiamiento (Jul 2026) would move the shelf price from COP 175K to ~197K — Altos Plata's price. Answer: the decree that would have doubled the specific tax was struck down in April (C-079/2026); price the pilot at today's rates and keep a 19%-IVA list ready — the whole market moves with us.

Importer concentration

Five importers move 85% of tequila and the biggest is Cuervo's. Answer: start with a small importer + e-commerce, use sell-through to earn the Dislicores conversation.

Departmental rules

Each departamento collects the consumption tax and may require its own stamp. Answer: a Bogotá importer with national coverage handles it — a reason to pick Vinpar/Nóvilil over a micro.

The DANE reference price

The ad valorem tax is set on the DANE-certified retail price we declare. Answer: build the declared price with the customs agent before the first import — it is hard to lower later.

Currency

Peso rallied 7.5% in July (TRM ~3,072 mid-Sep); the fiscal gap could reverse it. Answer: quote FOB in USD, review the COP price list quarterly.

Illicit and grey-market spirits

Colombia has a large contraband market in whisky and tequila. Answer: INVIMA registration, tamper-evident capsule and sell only through registered channels.

Three decisions this month

1 · Approve the pilot

One pallet (120 cases) at list FOB to a Colombian importer of record in Q4 2026 / Q1 2027, with 12-month volume-triggered exclusivity.

2 · Approve $6–8K

One Bogotá–Medellín trip, samples, label stickers, INVIMA translations and a bartender kit. This is the whole year-one marketing budget.

3 · Sign off the outreach

Emails to Vinpar, La Licorera and Nóvili go out this week; Dislicores and GWS briefed in parallel. Get one forwarder and one customs-agent quote to firm up the cost model.

Colombia gives us a top-10 market with zero duty and no trademark conflict — and a Spanish-language sell-in story we carry into Peru, Chile and the rest of Latin America.
